

MAKE YOUR JUSTICE FOR AFRICA SOLIDARITY WRISTBAND

STEP 1: CHOOSE YOUR MATERIALS

Your wristbands can be made with any material you would like or is easiest to find locally. All you need is try and find material in the five Justice for Africa colours, but this can also include painting neutral materials if certain colours are harder to source. Example materials you could use are:

string | rope | ribbons | thread or wool | fabric | elastic | old t-shirts, scarves or bedsheets ripped into strips |

RED: SOCIAL JUSTICE
BLACK: RACIAL JUSTICE
GREEN: CLIMATE JUSTICE
WHITE: PEACE
YELLOW: WOMEN'S RIGHTS

STEP 2: CREATE YOUR WRISTBAND

Cut your chosen material into equal strips long enough to tie around your wrist, head or waist depending on where you want to wear it.

Then twist or plait the fabric together so the colours are intertwined. This is important so that your band doesn't look like a country's flag.

Finally, wrap the twisted material around your wrist, head or waist and tie each end together so it forms a secure loop.

STEP 3: WEAR AND SHARE

Now you have made your wristband, take a photo or video and share online to stand in solidarity with youth and student activists across the world. Use #JusticeForAfrica on social media or send your photos to georgia@100million.org or WhatsApp/Telegram +44 7586 375128 with your name and country.

Once you've taken your photo, you can keep wearing the symbol as a conversation starter on the Justice for Africa campaign. You can also use them across your activities on 20th October and even make bigger versions from thicker rope or sheets to create banners for events and marches or to tie around lampposts, traffic lights or buildings in your community.

The Justice for Africa wristband is a way to show your solidarity with a global campaign started by African youth- and student-led organisations, exposing the sharp decline in the rights of young people in Africa in the last ten years and the unjust and discriminatory causes.

Activists held their first united global mobilisation on 20th February 2023, World Day of Social Justice, and will be mobilising again on 20th October 2023, Africa Human Rights Day.
